Offering unparalleled privacy, serenity, and a timeless connection to nature, this is a setting that feels like a world of its own.

Originally built in the mid-century era and fully reimagined in 2014 by award-winning architects Khanna Schultz, this architectural masterpiece has been beautifully renovated and restored, earning a feature in Dwell magazine. The chef's kitchen is outfitted with Caesarstone countertops, a Gaggenau induction stove, and Miele appliances, perfectly balancing form and function. The serene primary suite offers radiant heat floors, a walk-in closet, and a spa-like bath with a soaking tub—creating a true personal sanctuary.
